Yuliya Pangburn

A professional artist with a classical painting degree from Belarus, she honed her skills at the School of Visual Arts and the Art Students League of New York. She has worked as a theater artist, graphic designer, and classical artist. After settling in Casa Grande in 2012, she continued creating art while pursuing other life goals. Recently, she is refocusing on art as her main priority.

She primarily works with acrylics and watercolor, occasionally using oils and colored pencils. Her favorite subjects are people, as she enjoys exploring their souls to create intimate portraits. She also paints landscapes, revealing the hidden beauty within them.

The Magic of the Spring

The desert is a magical kingdom. It often seems bleak and sleepy under the hot sun, but it seizes every opportunity to wake up and shine. When you see the desert in the spring or after the rain, you can feel that it fully takes a glory in these perfect moments.

I love seeing the desert full of life, with blooming cacti and wildflowers. To be fully expressive, I used bright, contrasting colors, and bold, angular shapes to create a mosaic-like vibrancy and energy. Just as you might feel the urge to sing and dance outside, the desert is celebrating and reveling in the beauty, too, and you can witness it if you see it through a colorful, playful lens.
